THE

WAY

Members of the BSC bands parade their float in the Homecoming procession.

In the last decade, Birmingham-Southern has come to represent leadership in higher education. National rankings and public opinion reflect the fact that 'Southern is an outstanding school. Naturally, we take pride in this, because these ratings not only represent an institution, they also reflect us, the students. We are Leading the Way in more ways than one and our time on the Hilltop will continue this path of excellence that has been laid.

PREPARING

THE WAY

Success isn't easy. For every victory, athletic teams practice day in and day out. For every A, students spend hours studying. No one would argue, though, that the effort isn't worth it. Practice truly does pay off and it decides the difference between those who are first and everyone else. BSC students spend their time Preparing the Way for success now and later in life.

As part of their practice routine, the soccer team warms up by running laps around the soccer field.

Ellen Schendel and Kuniko Shimaoka study English in the Writing Lab.

CREATING THE

WAY

Everybody has some creativity inside of them. If or how they express it is up to them. In the Fine and Performing arts, students use theatre, dance, music, and visual images to express themselves. Art is an outlet of feelings and emotions transmitted through the artists' talents. By Creating the Way, artists entertain us and make us think.

During their fall show, BSC dancers perform in the College Theatre.

Hilary Harkness and Tracy Parnell continue work on their paintings of a model who had posed for their class.

Tennis player Ann-Marie McRae watches her teammates compete.

ALONG

School starts. Before you know it, it's time for finals, and not long after, the school year ends. Every year has both high and low points. For students, the stress of school work is balanced by the good times. Time flies, and Along the Way, we experience things that change our outlook on life and meet the people who will be our lasting friends.

THE

WAY

PAVING

Reaching out through community service has become an integral part of campus life. Southern Volunteer Services gives students the chance to get involved in outreach projects in the surrounding area. Whether they are tutoring a child or clearing brush in an overgrown riverside, they are Paving the Way for a more caring and civic-minded generation.

GETTING GETTING

The week that everyone waits for: Spring Break. Students cram clothes, food, beverages, and themselves into any available vehicle to escape the monotony of the school year. Everyone has their favorite vacation spots. Many head south to Florida, while others travel to cooler climates as far away as the Rocky Mountains. Where doesn't matter; all that's important is Getting Away.

Jazzing Things Up

BSC came alive with the sights and sounds of Bourbon St., New Orleans for Homecoming, 1992. During the first annual Homecoming parade, student organizations threw candy and moon pies to help celebrate Mardi Gras, which was this year's theme.

The Homecoming Committee also strove to hold more activities and get more people involved. "I think Homecoming '92 was better because more students took an active part in a broader variety of activities. It seems like there was someone from every group represented," said Judd Harbin.

Students began Jazzing Things Up as the week got underway with the ever-popular Miss Rowdy pageant, a bead toss and a moon-pie-eating contest.

Jill Balch was named Homecoming Queen and AOTI won the overall week's activities.

Reaching Out

Good times at BSC aren't limited to just parties. This year, over 500 people from the school participated in Outreach Day, and Reaching Out not only helped the community, it was also fun.

Outreach projects ranged from working at a nursing home to painting and repairing a Humane Society shelter.

"I really enjoyed just talking to the people who lived at the Nursing Home. We planted flowers and painted the railings" said Missy Book.

One of the fiercest competitions at Birmingham Southern doesn't occur on an athletic field or court, rather it takes place in the genteel atmosphere of the College Theatre. Not only is there a sizable sum of scholarship money up for grabs, but Miss BSC is also a preliminary to the Miss Alabama pageant. Because of the high stakes involved, and the high standards of the competitors, Miss BSC is a Cut Above most other pageants.

Contestants entered for several reasons. "I entered basically for the scholarship money. Then of course, it's a preliminary to Miss Alabama and there's a lot more scholarship money there," said Shannon NeSmith.

Talent seemed to be the favorite even among the contestants. Eleadrea Burkes said "Talent is different because I get to show my talents and the other girls get to showcase their own talents."

Shannon NeSmith was crowned as Miss BSC 1992. First runner-up was Day McDonald, second runner-up was Sissy Monroe, third runner-up was Laura Patterson, and fourth runner-up was Eleadrea Burkes.

The Way It Begins

After an intense week of Rush activities, Greeks welcome their new pledges. This celebration has come to be known as Bid Day. Part of this old Birmingham-Southern tradition is throwing each other in the fountain.

Afterwards, everyone heads down to Fraternity Row for a night of parties. The next day, pledges' acceptance in their chosen Greek organization begins. Greek life will play a major role in new members' lives. For new pledges, this is The Way It Begins.

A Way of Life

BSC is more than just our school, it's our home. Students eat, sleep, work, and play within the confines of the campus. For students, attending Birmingham-Southern has become A Way of Life.

Although we have the conveniences of housing and the cafeteria, most students would argue that living here is much different than home sweet home.

Beyond the Classroom

Classroom lectures are the expected norm at most institutions. At BSC, however, teachers take the learning experience outside the traditional lecture hall. Science students spend time in the lab to gain hands-on experience. Every year, some teachers take their classes to foreign countries during interim. Some professors focus their classes on student interaction, while others hold classes outside to lighten the atmosphere. At Southern, learning goes Beyond the Classroom.

Getting Out

During the Interim term students not only had the opportunity to take classes on campus, but also to take part in study-travel projects, and service-learning experiences.

These special programs give students the unique chance to learn in a new environment.

"The group experience was very rewarding and it was insightful learning about a foreign culture," said Carrie Smith, who went on the service interim to Zimbabwe.

Getting Out of the traditional academic setting proved very rewarding to many students.

Have You Capped Your Grad Today?

Although it's a fairly young tradition on BSC's campus, the third annual capping ceremony hosted by the Student Alumni Association has become very popular among graduating seniors. The purpose of the ceremony is to honor the family and friends of graduates by giving them the opportunity to "cap" the senior with his mortar board.

The ceremony is also enhanced by a lighthearted speaker, usually a faculty member chosen by the senior class. There is also a slide show accompanied by music to highlight the past four years. To conclude the ceremony, is the presentation of the senior class gift, which was a financial donation to go towards the construction of the new student center.

During the capping ceremony, seniors wait for their name and the name of their cappers to be called so they can be capped.

Mother Jeanette Andrews, who works in the President's Office, practices capping her daughter Michelle before the ceremony.

Business professor Byron Chew tells an amusing anecdote to those attending the capping ceremony while Co-Chairs of the Senior Activities Committee Tracy Real and Jeff Woody look on.

Alicia Fritz awaits the start of the capping ceremony with her mother.

Gloria Blaxton, Mildred Meadows, Brian Lester, and Darrell Stovall take part in the capping ceremony.

133rd Commencement Graduates Largest Class

Birmingham-Southern College's class of 1992 is the largest in the history of the school. Four hundred and fifty-six graduates received degrees in the William Harris State Fair Arena. The commencement address was given by Louis J. Willie, chairman and CEO of the Booker T. Washington Insurance Company. Willie expressed the importance of community and how we must work together as human beings in order to live peacefully. Steve Hodges and April Whitten received the Robert Hewlin Jackson Meritorius Scholarship Award in recognition of maintaining the highest GPAs in their class.

The BSC Chapter of AXΩ was established in 1926. AXΩ started this year with its first rush in the new sorority townhouse.

To raise money for the Easter Seals Foundation, the pledge class started a project called "Breakfast in Bed" in which students placed orders for someone they knew to have breakfast in bed. The AXΩ pledges then served the person breakfast in their dorm rooms early in the morning.

AXΩ also held its annual Casino fundraiser, which gave BSC students the chance to play blackjack, poker, and to spin the roulette wheel.

Champ (Kerry McInerney) has an argument with Bo (Brian Lester), and Jemison (Carlton Chamblin) in the mill office.

Millfire

"I know a mill town by the smell of it," says Sally Nemeth, the author of "Millfire." Her inspiration for the play came from her father, a steelworker, who moved to Birmingham in 1974 and worked at a small local mill. As early as five years old, she became familiar with the mill environment. "It's the most killing work you can do when trying to deal with relationships or raise a family." Nemeth internalized all of these feelings and emotions into "Millfire," a story about redemption and forgiveness. When a fatal mill explosion takes the lives of some workers, the main character, one of the widows, has to learn to give it up in order to heal and carry on with her life. The "giving it up" that Nemeth refers to is the process of letting go of the rage, the memories, and the emotions associated with the tragedy.

Nemeth came to Birmingham-Southern during rehearsal to visit with the cast in order to give them a more in-depth understanding of her work.

Leading the Way, the 51st volume of Southern Accent, produced by the Publications Board of Birmingham-Southern College, 900 Arkadelphia Road, Birmingham, Alabama 35254. Herff Jones Yearbooks, Inc., printed 1400 copies of the 200 page Smythe-sewn 9×12 book in the Montgomery, Alabama plant. The Birmingham-Southern Yearbook Staff was assisted by Herff Jones Technical Consultant Steve Elliott.

Southern Accent operated on a budget of approximately $30,000, which was provided by the Student Government Association through Student Activity Fees. Books are provided to all students who paid the Activity Fee, and are also available at a cost of $25 to faculty, staff, and all others.

The theme Leading the Way was inspired by Birmingham-Southern College's leadership in the areas of academics, athletics, environmentalism, and overall ranking as a liberal arts college.

The vast majority of type is set in Helvetica or variations of Helvetica. Division page spreads were designed by the Yearbook Staff Faculty Advisor Pam Venz. The cover was designed jointly by Editor Carlton Chamblin and Steve Elliot. The title page was designed by Ralph Young. Copy was written by Matt Henderson and Carlton Chamblin unless otherwise noted.

Staff Photographers used T-Max 400 speed film for all black and white photographs. These were developed in the Publication Board darkroom. Color photographs were sent off to different developers for processing. Student Portraits in the People section of the book were taken by Belmont Studios. All remaining photographs were taken by BSC students, the Office of Public Information, and BSC Theater.

The staff would like to thank SGA for funding the purchase of a new Macintosh computer for publications. Also, special thanks to Art and Dorothy Ward for technical advice, and to Steve Elliot for coming back one more year.

Editor's Notes:

I would like to thank the Office of Student Affairs, especially Dudley Long and Gwen Dill, for all their patience and advice. Also, my thanks to Denny Turner and the Operations Staff for all the renovations they performed on the Southern Accent room and Pub Board darkroom. Ron Council, Chris Hershey and the OPI Staff earned my deepest gratitude for contributing so much. I would like to thank all of my staff and advisor Pam Venz for all they have done to bring innovations to this year's book. Finally, my thanks go out to a good friend who was always willing to listen. Look at me!
